TORONTO SWEEPS MEN'S AND WOMEN'S TITLE AGAIN CLEVELAND AND SWEETNAM WORLD CLASS

TORONTO—Laurentian University's Nancy Sweetnam stole the show at this year's CIAU Championships. Her three Canadian records were the highlights of the annual competition.

Host University of Toronto successfully defended the men's and women's team title and became the first team to do this back-to-back feat. Toronto coach Byron MacDonald was pleased "It is always nice to accomplish something like this at home in front of your friends and family."

The men's team, who had a 32-year string of consecutive conference (OUAA) titles ended by McMaster two weeks prior to these championships amassed 505 points to Laval's 412. Toronto women totalled 470.5 to Montreal's 444.

MacDonald was named CIAU men's coach of the year and the head coach for Canada's team competing at the World University Games next July in Buffalo.

Sweetnam enrolled at Laurentian last fall after competing at the Barcelona Olympics. The months spent with coach Jeno Tihanyi had a dramatic impact. Her three wins out of the four events she competed in were not only Canadian and CIAU records but the world second fastest times (25 M) this winter. The 200 I.M. was just 3/10ths off the world best time.

In the 200 breaststroke she stunned Guylaine Cloutier, UdM, who was a finalist in Barcelona for both the 100 and 200. The race was a typical display of the 'new' Nancy. She was over a body length behind Cloutier at the 100. By the end of the 125, it was all over. What really happened was that Nancy swam a text-book paced race. Cloutier might have gone out too hard and once challenged couldn't respond. Sweetnam's splits:

34.40 37.75 36.47 37.07 for a 2:25.69

She added record setting swims for 200-400 individual medley.

An elated Sweetnam explained her great swims, "I've learned an awful lot about the finer points of the sport since joining coach Tihanyi."

For Tihanyi, Sweetnam's fine performances earned Women's Coach of the Year award.

Other women standouts: McGill's Andrea Nugent, winning three golds, with a record in the 100 free...Montreal's Patricia Noall-Lauzon, winning the 400-800 free after motherhood, still record setting in the longer race...

Men's standouts: Calgary's Jon Cleveland—impressive with his sweep of the three breaststroke events here and at Winter Nationals a week before—giving him world leading times in the 100 and 200. Coach Deryk Snelling explained that all of Cleveland's success was due to hard work and determination.

Stephen Hulford,TOR Marco Chiesa

Another swimmer to sweep their specialities at both Winter Nationals and CIAU's was UBC's Turlough O'Hare. In Saint John, the week before he won 200-400-800 and 1500 free, adding the 200-400-1500 here in Toronto. He wasn't pushed in any of them either.

Other standouts: Stephen Hulford, Toronto, repeat winner at Winter Nationals and CIAU's with sub two minute performances both times for the 200 back...Laval's Francois Gravel winning three golds, 50-100 back, and 100 fly.

With so many prominent Canadian in the US it's worth noting McGill's American transplant Paul Watson, backstroke medallist in all three distances, with a world class 54.99 leading off the medley relay.

Calgary's Jon Cleveland Marco Chiesa

IN BRIEF: Only 130 swimmers take part in the CIAU's, which hasn't affected the quality of the finalists...The stroke 50's added this year, were short lived—removed from next year's meet following the coaches meeting....Next year's meet will be in Victoria, following long course Commonwealth Trials in the new pool. Plan to stay for a nine days. (Five for the trials, a day off and three days for the CIAU's.)

SWIM POOLS, CLUBS, AND COACHES

READY ACCESS TO SWIMMING POOL TIME AND SPACE AFFECTS THE OUTCOME OF MOST PROGRAMS

Swimming coaches around the world work in a variety of systems including state programs, swim clubs, and their own swim schools. The system in which a coach operates often influences results and, where one system predominates in a country, it must affect the entire national standard.

During a long career I have coached in several systems, notably in South Africa, Australia and Canada, and have also observed programs in other countries. My purpose is not to argue for or against any particular system but to highlight its main features. In most systems access to swimming pool time and space is both a common problem and an important factor affecting the efficiency of the program.

While there is no shortage of good swimming facilities in most countries, large rental fees place inordinate demands on the energies and resources of club personnel. If compromises can be made between the relevant parties, these stresses can be largely reduced. More constructive thought and energy then can be applied directly to improving actual swimming performance.

In Canada and the United States, the swim club system predominates; the parents and swimmers raise the main funding to pay for pool-hire, travel, and coaching salaries. The parents employ the coaches, and control the club administration with the head coach in charge of day-to-day operations. Like all systems, the swim club has both its strengths and its weaknesses.

While Canada today perhaps has the best model of a club system in the world, it is unfortunate that the club system has within it the seeds of its own destruction. Soaring operating costs and consequent diminishing pool time and space place a heavy burden on already hard-working club organisers.

To meet rising costs, too many people need to be accepted into the program making it difficult to maintain standards and give adequate attention to the more talented athletes. In addition, the influx of new club members usually results in a "mixed" membership whose goals are not always exclusively aimed at achieving excellence. After coaching swimmers in my own swim school organisation for most of my career, I worked in the Canadian club system for exactly two years. Within that short time there were no fewer than three changes in the club's written constitution. The initial constitution that stated that the club's aims and objectives were "to strive for excellence" was gradually whittled down to a weak-kneed compromise between "recreation and excellence".

Many great swimmers worldwide have been spawned in the swim club system. In the United States, the face of swimming seems to be changing; there are no more "super-clubs" such as Mission Viejo and Santa Clara in their hey day. One by one, leading American club coaches are lured to coach in Universities. The effects of this migration on the developmental levels of American swimming have been evident for some years now. While recruiting star swimmers for university teams is hard work, no longer do former club coaches have to work all hours and all year. Within the university system they have more autonomy and are not responsible to parents with little background of swimming knowledge. Obviously, there is a need to take a new, long look at all aspects of the club system, both in Canada and the United States.

In Southern Hemisphere countries such as Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, the systems are vastly different to those obtaining in North America. Obtaining pool time and space is usually hard but, sometimes, can be surprisingly easy when one is able to strike a good deal with a local pool owner or operator.

In South Africa, I hired pool space from municipal authorities and rented pools from private owners to conduct my swim school activities. In addition, my coaching staff gave learn-to-swim and physical education classes in the mornings at local schools for nominal fees as part of the school curriculum. In return for this service, we received free pool time and permission to charge fees for giving stroke technique lessons in the afternoons and coaching senior competitive swimmers in the evenings.

In this way my swim school chain catered to the aquatic needs of a big population across the eastern suburbs of the large city of Johannesburg. In this system, we first taught the kids how to swim, then we taught them to swim better and encouraged them to join our junior age group teams. Gradually, through the years, we moved the talented swimmers through into the senior ranks, many of them finally breaking through into world class. For more than 25 years I was my own boss, able to decide my own coaching philosophy, and guide and educate the entire group, parents and swimmers alike, in what I believed best to achieve our goals.

Other swim school formats exist in South Africa. Many coaches build their own outdoor swim pools in the backyards of their homes to conduct afternoon learn-to-swim classes with the aid of a staff of assistants. In addition, they contract with local schools, which have their own pools, to give morning swim classes as part of the formal physical education program. In the evenings, the coaches use pool space hired from local municipalities (for a nominal charge of about fifty dollars per season!) to train their competitive teams. This broad contact with swimmers at all levels, from beginners to advanced, ensures a flow of talent through the ranks.

(A word of caution when assessing coach-owned-and-operated programs. With the advent of the increased incidence of large public liability legal suits in recent years, coaches run a risk of financial disaster should one of their pupils be involved in a serious accident while on their premises.)

Another variation on the theme is for coaches to be employed as pool managers of municipal pool complexes. In exchange, for sole coaching rights and free on-site housing, these coach-cum-pool-managers often agree to a lower salary for their managerial duties because they are able to earn large incomes from their coaching and learn-to-swim activities.

In Australia, despite the large number of facilities, obtaining the use of a suitable training pool is a difficult problem. Municipal authorities generally seem more interested in revenue and the demands of the "public" than the problems of coaches who want to train competitive swimmers. When allowing coaches to use their pools, they appear largely more concerned with what revenue a coach can entice through the gates by way of learn-to-swim youngsters than any ability he/she may have to coach advanced swimmers. The disadvantage of municipally-controlled pools, from a competitor's viewpoint, is that recreational swimmers have first preference. Next in line are the learn-to-swim programs with competitive swimmers receiving what remains of pool space and time. (Does this have a familiar ring?)

Most Australian and New Zealand coaches are entrepreneurs. They need to be in order to have facilities in which to work efficiently. Their main income is derived from fees for teaching and coaching. The majority are financially heavily involved in owning, managing or leasing facilities, as well as paying staff. Some have shops which sell swimsuits and other equipment. Many coaches build their own indoor pools; utility-type indoor 25 metres facilities with limited seating for swim meets and certainly not in the same category as the luxurious pools built in North America.

It is to their credit that they are prepared to carry large financial burdens to coach their better swimmers throughout the year. Once financial commitments are met, the profit margin appears comparatively small; other enterprises would yield better return on capital outlay.

To make their pools pay, Australian and New Zealand coaches are committed to extensive and continuous year round programs from beginners through "improver" ranks to age group and seniors. They need all this lower level activity to support the top squads on who they make nothing or very little money because of the extra pool time and space needed. For these entrepreneur coaches training a top squad is little more than an expensive hobby. Most coaches find nearly all their waking hours involved, often to the sacrifice of family life.

In Australia, coaches are very much judged on their merits and there is a notable tendency for swimmers to move from one coach to another when dis-satisfied with their results. In Melbourne, in the 1970's, this constant movement of swimmers was known, with typical Australian whimsy, as "the Melbourne merry-go-round". There is strong pressure and incentive for coaches to produce good results with their competitive swimmers. Although they do not make such money from training competitors, the results achieved by their star swimmers are a "shop window" which attracts hundreds of aspiring youngsters to the more remunerative lower level programs.

There is no "comfort zone" for the serious Australian coach-entre preneur who is always judged by his/her most recent results. Contrast this with the situation obtaining in some swim clubs. Unfortunately, there will always be the coach who feels secure in the certain knowledge of drawing a monthly cheque, irrespective of results achieved. The problem is compounded by the fact that parents who run the clubs have no yardstick to measure the effectiveness or otherwise of the coaching staff.

On the other hand, there are many outstanding club coaches who produce consistently fine results with little, if any, motivation and incentive for improvement. Most of the top coaching positions in Canada are taken and such opportunities rarely become available. Moreover, to build a super-club from scratch is an indomitable challenge because most talented youngsters are bound to gravitate to the elite clubs before the intended new organization can become reality.

Unfortunately, in all the systems mentioned, there is a high fall-out rate of coaches, most of whom are a loss to the sport. Obviously, the coaching of swimming needs to be made more attractive and motivating to those interested in pursuing it as a life-time profession. Many intelligent and capable coaches feel that the average annual salary of approximately $35,000 is not commensurate with their talents, and their perceptions are probably correct. Few coaches seem destined to reach the reputed top salary brackets said to average around $75,000 per annum.

One cannot elaborate on all the components of the Canadian and other systems within the limited scope of a magazine article. As stated, my intention was merely to highlight some of the choices and decisions made by others in a variety of circumstances. In studying the inherent difficulties of various systems it should be noted that, just as most issues are seldom black and white, so are most good solutions seldom black or white. The reason there are two sides to begin with usually is because neither side has all the facts. Therefore, when the wise mediator effects a compromise, he/she is acting from a sense of respect for the whole truth. If we can identify facts and separate them from personal opinions, the way will be open to creative thinking and constructive action on the challenges that face swimming in the future.

SWIMMING FASTER

MICHAEL GURGOL, NYAC Swim Coach

Liam Weseloh, NYAC finished in third place for the 1500 free at Winter Nationals. In conversation with gold medal winner Turlough O'Hare who now trains at the Univ.of Toronto we discovered that Liam took 420 more strokes than Turlough for the 1500.

At Turlough's rate of 15 strokes per 25 m this worked out to the equivalent of 700 more meters. Liam is taking 1.5 strokes for every one that Turlough takes.

In order for Liam to improve, he needs to reduce his overall number of strokes. The time difference between them was 15:04 to 15:33. If we can drop one stroke per 25 m we will save 60 strokes over the race. Our goals is to work towards this number.

We will be doing more pulling without paddles and counting the number of strokes per length. Now that we are into long course training, we're aiming for 40-43 strokes per 50 m. This happens to be the range for most international swimmers in the 400-1500 free.

All hard aerobic sets will require that Liam maintain this stroke rate and still be able to get his heart rate up to 10-15 off maximum. We may not be able to hit this stroke rate this year, but certainly within a year it should be possible.

I'm applying the same approach to my other distance swimmer Stephane Richardson. Both of these athletes naturally have a very high stroke rate. Once we stretch out their stroke and have them catch more water, I believe they will swim faster especially if they increase their turnover.

We'd like to hear from others working to swim faster.

BACKWASH

Backwash features short clips, gossip, letters and opinion. Contributions are welcomed. Now for the rumours behind the news.

Thunder Bay reunion: The Thunderbolts are planning their 20th anniversary reunion on August 20-22, 1993. Any former TBT swimmers to contact: Andy Ritchie, 98 College St., Thunder Bay, Ontario, P7A 5J5 Tel (807) 345-4989 or Fax (807) 346-8885. Former coach Don Talbot (1972-78) has already indicated his attendance.

American power struggle: 150 coaches attending the Phillips 66 US Championships in Nashville April 1-4, including the last eight head coaches of US Olympic Teams, are unhappy with some of the ways Ray Essick is handling his job as executive director of U.S. Swimming. As reported in the New York Times by Frank Litsky.

The coaches outlined many of their complaints in a letter sent March 18 to Bill Maxson, the president of U.S. Swimming, indicating Essick was autocratic, who makes unilateral decision, excluding any coaching input. They questioned the wisdom of how some of the organization's $8 million annual budget was spent. The job of well-regarded national team director Dennis Pursley has been downgraded and now reports to a sports scientist who lacked coaching knowledge.

The dissident coaches are upset about reported irregularities in research conclusions by U.S. Swimming's physiologists. Welcome to the 1990's...

Editor: I recently returned from the 1993 Winter nationals in Saint John, New Brunswick. One of my younger athlete's goal was to qualify for the 8 Nations Youth Team which will travel to Germany in April. After a tough four days of competition and some very close calls my athlete finally earned his spot by ranking #1 in the 200 IM.

I must express my dissatisfaction with the selection process. We had been elated with his qualification and looked forward to the naming of the team. Much to our dismay we found out the selection of the team would be put to committee not present at the competition and wouldn't be announced for a week to 10 days.

I strongly believe that identifying these athletes at the competition is essential. The reward of this type of acknowledgement, not to mention receiving the new team gear is very exciting to the young athlete. It is also inspiring to team mates and other younger athletes that goals can be realized and recognized at the national level.

Because the confirmation of the team was delayed we were not able to celebrate the moment as we should have. Coaches and athletes need this type of immediate recognition to reward them all for all the hard work that goes into the preparation. When confirmation finally did arrive it was very anti-climatic.

The selection committee should have been prepared to pick the team at the nationals and announce it at the conclusion of the meet. This competition is a very big deal with our younger athletes and more thought should have been put into place prior to the nationals. The eligible athletes should have been identified in the program so we knew who was competing to make the team.

Let's not forget the excitement and the pure inspiration that is experienced by young athletes in these situations. These are our future stars and we must seize the opportunities by providing the continued motivation of swimming better and faster.

Gary MacDonald,
Head Coach HTAC

A few days after the team was finally announced SNC added Mark Versfeld to the 8-Nation Team (see list in March issue). He was inadvertently left off the original selection.

Life after the fast lane: Sandy Goss, a double silver medal winner for anchoring Canada's 4x100 medley relay at the 1984 and 1988 Olympics, is now gainfully employed as an account executive with Moss Lawson & Co. Limited.

Moss, Lawson has been serving investors since 1923 and is a member of major Canadian stock exchanges. Anyone needing investment advice should contact Sandy at 1 Toronto Street, Suite 410, Toronto, Ontario M5C 2W3 Tel: (416) 864-2741 or 1 (800) 387-1883

Denials will sound even more hollow now: A Chinese swimmer, Xin Zhu, has been suspended by FINA after failing a drug test while competing in Beijing, early January. Zhu, placed fourth in the 200 I.M. Her suspension will last two years.

During the Malmo World Cup Meet, Swedish coach Hans Chrunak caused a scandal with his accusation that the Chinese women had all the outward symptoms of steroid use; heavy musculature, deep voices, extensive acne etc. The Chinese were indignant and demanded an apology from FINA.

French coach Stephane Bardoux, upon his return from the two World Cups in China declared in a report in Natation (French swim publication) "During our visit we were able to observe development groups in training all showing evidence of drug use. Without a doubt there is systematic steroid use..."

Holding on for dear life: The "Canadian Start" was introduced to help our swimmers learn to 'hold their marks' at the start of the race. The effectiveness of this rule was demonstrated recently at a regional meet in Ontario.

At the command "Take your marks!" the swimmer in lane one took his mark and held on as the starting block fell over. He only let go when the block stopped moving. His first reaction was to look at the referee to make sure he was not disqualified for re-introducing motion...

Remember... It's not true until it has been officially denied.

NEW PRODUCT UPDATE

SPEEDO UNVEILED, DURING THE BARCELONA OLYMPICS, ITS NEW FULL-TORSO COMPETITION SWIMSUIT. THE FIRST OF ITS KIND, MADE FROM A TECHNOLOGICALLY ADVANCED POLYESTER/POLYURETHANE FABRIC DEVELOPED EXCLUSIVELY FOR THE COMPANY

THE SUIT, NAMED THE S2000, IS SAID TO INCREASE THE SWIMMER'S SPEED DUE TO THE SPECIAL FABRIC WHICH CREATES LESS WATER RESISTANCE THAN EXPOSED SKIN, THUS DECREASING OVERALL RESISTANCE FOR THE SWIMMER. IN ADDITION, THE SUIT IS DESIGNED WITH A HIGH NECK AND A ZIPPERED BACK FOR MAXIMUM BODY COVERAGE AND SUPERIOR FIT, WHILE THE HIGH CUT SHOULDERS AND LEGS ALLOW FOR COMPLETE FREEDOM OF MOVEMENT.

Branko Suric, 14
Club: PEPSI Swimming
Coach: Chuck Meklensek
Specialty: Breaststroke
Winner Ontario Age Groups in 100 breast, ranks first SCM93 TAG for same event, 2nd in 200 breast.

THIS SUIT IS THE LATEST ADDITION TO SPEEDO'S COMPETITIVE SWIMWEAR LINE, A SWIMWEAR CATEGORY THAT THE COMPANY DOMINATES IN THE U.S. AND CANADA, IN FACT, THE SPEEDO BRAND NAME HAS BEEN ASSOCIATED WITH SWIMMING AND DIVING CHAMPIONS SINCE THE 1950'S. MORE MEDAL WINNERS AND WORLD RECORD HOLDERS HAVE BEEN SUITED UP IN SPEEDO THAN ANY OTHER BRAND.
SUITS WILL BE AVAILABLE JANUARY 1993.
